

NexaRetail: Three Key Business Observations

Supporting analysis from the NexaRetail Sales Performance EDA

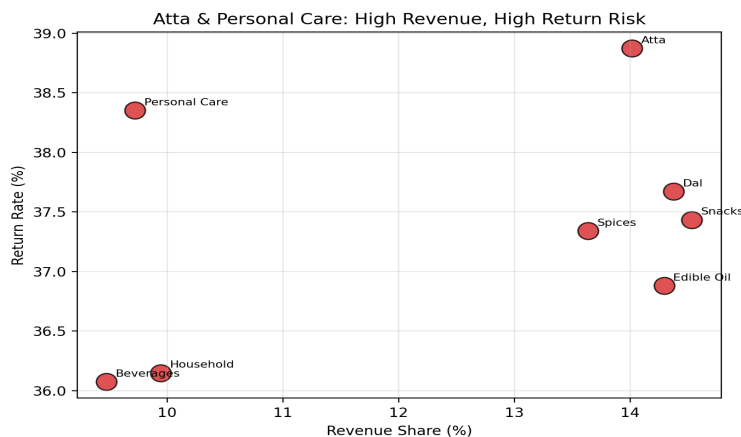

Observation 1: Revenue Leadership Is Volume-Driven, Not Value-Driven

Across all 10 cities, average order value stays in a tight band of roughly Rs. 3,885 to Rs. 4,035, while total order counts vary far more widely. Cities such as Kolhapur, Nagpur and Surat lead on revenue mainly because they generate more transactions, not because customers there spend more per order.

Recommendation: Prioritize initiatives that increase purchase frequency — loyalty programs, replenishment reminders, and localized promotions — over initiatives aimed purely at growing basket size, since order volume is the actual lever behind city-level revenue leadership.

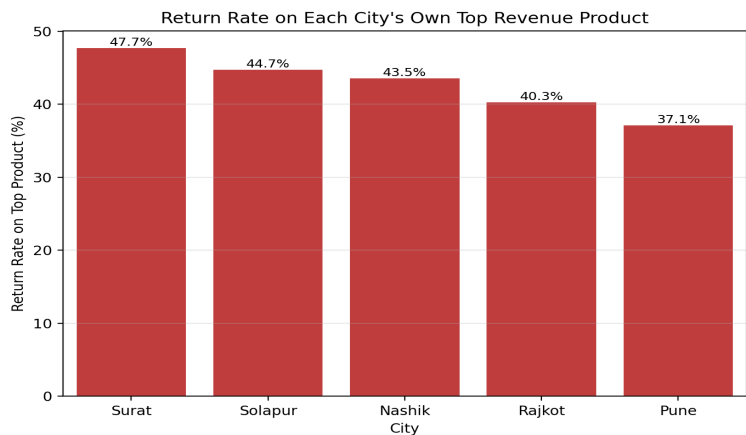

Observation 2: A Handful of Categories Combine High Revenue With High Return Risk

Snacks (14.5%), Dal (14.4%) and Edible Oil (14.3%) generate the largest shares of revenue, but they are not where return risk is concentrated. Atta (38.9% return rate) and Personal Care (38.4%) carry the highest return rates of all 8 categories despite only mid-tier revenue shares (14.0% and 9.7%) — the most financially consequential combination to fix.

Recommendation: Direct quality, packaging and fulfillment audits at Atta and Personal Care first — improving their return rates offers the best financial return of any category-level intervention in the portfolio.

Observation 3: Rajkot Carries the Largest Combined Revenue-at-Risk From a Single Product

Every city has one product that drives the largest share of its local revenue. Rajkot's top product, NexaGold Wheat Atta 5kg, contributes 9.2% of the city's total revenue — nearly 50% higher than any other city's top product share — while also carrying a 40.3% return rate. Surat, Solapur and Nashik post even higher return-rate percentages on their own top products (up to 47.7% in Surat), but because those products represent a smaller slice of city revenue, Rajkot's combination of unusually high revenue concentration and a high return rate produces the single largest amount of revenue genuinely at risk from one SKU.

Recommendation: Launch a targeted quality and delivery audit for NexaGold Wheat Atta 5kg in Rajkot first, then extend the same review to Surat, Solapur and Nashik, whose top products show comparably high return-rate percentages.
